Changes to Adult Carer's Assessment

Nicki Smith and David Price gave a presentation on the changes to the Carers Assessment format following the Care Act 2014. A big part of the changes is that carers will be treated equally as those who are cared for.

The key changes to the adult carer's assessments are that:

- Carers are now considered in the same way as those they care for
- All carers are entitled to an assessment if they appear to need support
- The cared for person does not need to be eligible for services.
- Carers now have a national eligibility criteria
- Carer's support is the responsibility of the cared for person's Local Authority
- There is greater focus on early intervention to prevent, reduce and delay need

The new assessment takes a more conversational format and focuses on the impact of being a carer on an individual's health and wellbeing. There are five key questions to the assessment which take the carer through three stages of eligibility:

- That the carer provides necessary care
- As a result of being a carer, their own health is affected or they are unable to meet their own needs/responsibilities
- Because they can't meet their own needs/responsibilities, there is a significant impact on the carers wellbeing

There is also now a new budget for carers that provides ongoing support through direct payments over a year rather than a one-off direct payment. It is up to the carer what the money is for, as long as it helps support them to meet their own needs.

More carers are accessing assessments, with 750 assessments carried out in the last 4 months. HCC are looking at supporting carers to submit their own self-assessments and are also appointing 13 new Carer Practitioner posts who will support carers across Hertfordshire. The practitioners will support people to recognise themselves as carers and will attend practitioner networks to swap experiences and best practise.. HCC are aiming to have a carers champion in every GPs surgery by March 2016.

Herts Help – Guidance in the Home

Caro Hart gave an overview of the Guidance in the Home (GIH) project which is one of the services provided under Herts Help. GIH gets the majority of its referrals through the Herts Healthy Homes triage of services and is currently in the process of building partnerships. The primary beneficiaries of the service are vulnerable older people who may be socially isolated (including those with disabilities, sensory impairment, mental health issues, learning disabilities or who are struggling because English is not their first language).

The role of GIH is to visit an older person and to help with underlying problems (e.g. a health issue, help with domestic paperwork and dealing with debt or crisis) with the aim of stepping back from home visits and to signpost them to the relevant services after two or three visits. Home visitors will also act as spotters for hazards when in the home and are working on nutrition advice too. The service is built on breadth rather than depth and has a target of 5000 home visits per year.

Public Health Fund update

Liz Gore gave an update on the Public Health Fund.

- The Hertsmere Health and Wellbeing Partnership grants were launched today with 14th September as the deadline for applications. The grants are being run in partnership with CAH's HHH small grants fund and are aimed at supporting local community and voluntary groups in Hertsmere to improve health and wellbeing for those that live, work and visit the area. Projects that were funded last year include Groundwork Wild Play, Savour the Flavour an interactive performance on positive health behaviours and a weekly crochet group to support those with mental health issues.
- The Groundwork proposal for two more weeks of Wild Play sessions was accepted and the sessions are running throughout August.
- Walking football sessions are starting on Thursday 27th August.
- Fitness in the Park sessions started 3rd August and will be running throughout the month.
- A Youth Mental Health First aid training course run by Pro-Action was agreed by the group to be funded. This will involve two of the Pro-Action team being trained to deliver Youth Mental Health First aid training to workers in the children and youth sector who may have been approached in the past by young people with mental health issues but have been unsure of how to deal with them. This project ties in with the Hertfordshire Year of Mental Health.
